Appendix 1 - History of parks

The origin of lands managed today by Greater Wellington Regional Council as a network of regional parks and forests can be traced back to the 1880s parks movement. The parks that we have today are a result of the largely western school of thought that evolved in Europe, Canada and the United States of America. In these very early days, parks were largely a means to provide the common people a respite from the crowding and pollution due to industrialisation.

By 1911 urban populations in New Zealand outnumbered their rural counterparts. The concept of protection forests to moderate flooding, reduce erosion and ensure good water quality were generally well understood. Many provincial towns and cities depended on water supplies from forested catchments such as the Korokoro Catchment (now part of Belmont Regional Park), Karori and Wainuiomata/Orongorongo Valleys. This was formalised through the establishment of the Wellington City and Suburban Water Board in 1927. Lands vested in this authority included the Hutt, Akatarawa, Whakatikei and Pakuratahi catchments.

The period from the 1920s to the 1950s was characterised by growing demand for greater quantity and quality of water for the growing urban areas of the Hutt Valley and Wellington. Management of forest lands was recognised as being essential to assure future water supplies to the cities. This growing urban community was also seeking an outlet for its leisure interests and an assurance that these opportunities would be protected at a regional level. Public demand for increased access reflected wider societal changes across New Zealand. The formation of tramping clubs, increased urbanisation and greater affluence resulted in growing and diverse range of recreational pursuits were being sought.

The early 1970s were characterised by a perceived decrease in landscape resources, lack of recreational resources and restricted rights of access. In the Wellington region the demand for public access to land for recreation was not reflected in how water catchments were managed. Water Board policy right through until the 1970s largely excluded public from these lands. Forestry and water supply security remained paramount. Forestry rangers were tasked with patrolling council lands to ensure the public did not gain access to prohibited areas, and to prosecute offenders wherever possible.

The Local Government Act 1974 empowered the Wellington Regional Council to hold, manage and purchase land for regional parks.

The 1976 Wellington Regional Planning Authority document Regional Parks for the Wellington Region recognised that a growing regional population, wealth, mobility and attitudes towards leisure and the environment created demand for outdoor recreational opportunities in the region. This document identified the need for “semi-remote” outdoor recreational opportunities, particularly on the fringe of urban areas, thus paving the way for the regional parks network we recognise today.

The document set the agenda for the formation of what was to become the Wellington Regional Council Parks Department and the regional parks and forests network. The original proposal for regional parks intended to encompass five different landscape types, identified at Kaitoke, Belmont, East Harbour, Queen Elizabeth Park and Makara. The proposal for the parks network did not include Water Board land (with the exception of Kaitoke, where it sat outside the catchment area).

The conflicts and pressures arising from urban demands on rural land were very pronounced in the 1970's, with farms such as the Department of Lands and Survey Waitangirua Farm (now part of Belmont Regional Park) reporting increased trespass, vandalism and damage to property and stock through increasing public access pressures. The 1976 document recognised the need to manage these and other issues by creating a network of regional parks. Managed public access through a regional park network was seen as the key to addressing the conflicts and demands of public access to lands in the peri-urban Wellington region. A concurrent theme running through the document recognised the need to protect and conserve significant regional landscapes, as well as natural and cultural features. Managed public access was always regarded as going hand in hand with this concept.

In 1980 the Wellington Regional Council was formed, amalgamating the functions of the former Regional Water Board and Planning Authority. Progress towards the creation of a regional parks network built momentum from this point on. A dedicated Parks Department operating within the Wellington Regional Council was created to manage and oversee the establishment of the regional parks and forests network.

By the late 1980s, many of the original Planning Authority recommendations for establishing a Regional Park network were moving closer to becoming a reality. The Parks Department established the groundwork for Battle Hill, Belmont, Queen Elizabeth and Kaitoke Parks. Pencarrow, or East Harbour Regional Park, took a little longer to become part of the park network. A regional park at Makara did not eventuate.

A regional asset, the Greater Wellington parks network is the result of forethought by government authorities and a public voice which recognised the importance of protecting open space.

For further information about the history of each park, refer to the park description in this plan, or the individual park resource statements.

6. Penalties for breach of Bylaw.....	xxxiii

Explanation

The Council is authorised under section 149 of the Local Government Act 2002 to make bylaws managing the use of regional parks and forests, and soil conservation and river control reserves that it owns or administers. The Local Government Act 2002 also allows the Council to make bylaws for flood protection and flood control works.

This Bylaw manages activities so that these parks, forests and reserves can be used for their intended purpose without users being subject to hazard, nuisance or activities that may adversely affect their health, safety and well-being.

It provides for the protection of the natural and heritage resources, land, buildings and structures of all regional parks, forests and reserves from damage or loss through any human activity.

The operative Regional Parks Network Management Plan, the Regional Forest Land Management Plan, and individual park management plans and access plans identify activities that can be undertaken as of right without approval (allowed activities), activities that need to be managed through specific controls (managed activities), activities for which approval is required (restricted activities) and activities which may not occur in any circumstances (prohibited activities). The Bylaw ensures compliance with these management and access plans and they should be referred to when interpreting the Bylaw.

The Bylaw does not prevent or inhibit any lawful management or emergency services activity within a regional park, forest, recreation area or reserve.

1. Bylaw administration

- 1.1 This Bylaw applies to all regional parks, forests and reserves owned or administered by the Council, and any flood protection works and flood control works undertaken by or on behalf of the Council.
- 1.2 This Bylaw shall come into force on 1 May 2009.
- The 1994 Wellington Regional Council Bylaws for Forests, Parks and Recreation Areas will be revoked on 30 April 2009.*
- 1.3 This Bylaw is in addition to all other Council powers under the Reserves Act 1977, Local Government Act 2002, regional parks and forest management plans, water catchment area access plans, floodplain management plans and any other Acts and policies applying to regional parks, forests and reserves.
- 1.4 This Bylaw shall not apply to:
1. Officers or agents of the Council exercising their lawful functions; or
 2. Emergency services and civil defence personnel carrying out public duties; or
 3. Volunteer group activities undertaken in agreement with Greater Wellington Regional Council officers; or
 4. An activity undertaken within the terms of prior written approval from Council, including concessions and leases.
- 1.5 Applications to obtain the written approval for a proposed activity as set out in part 4 of this Bylaw shall be:
1. Applied for in accordance with the provisions set out in the Council's operative concession policy (information on this policy is available on the web site or at any Council office); and
 2. Granted prior to carrying out the activity.
- 1.6 The Council when considering any application made under clause 1.5 may:
1. Require a fee be paid at the time the application is made; and
 2. Impose conditions, including the payment of fees towards the monitoring of the activity.

2. Definitions – (relating to Greater Wellington Parks, Forests and Reserves Bylaw 2009)
