Who is the committee?

The Ruamāhanga Whaitua Committee are farmers, mana whenua, householders, scientists, recreationalists, councillors and environmentalists. They combine the knowledge and experience of the community who live in the catchment. To find out more about who's who, see our website www.gw.govt.nz/ruamahanga-whaitua

What are they doing?

The Ruamāhanga Whaitua Committee are working towards producing a Whaitua Implementation Programme (WIP) which will provide recommendations to the Greater Wellington Regional Council on land and water management in the Ruamāhanga River catchment. The WIP will contain a programme of actions which will help the community manage their land and water resources for the future.

You have told us

People throughout the catchment say that improved water quality, along with a sustainable economic and ecological future is important.

So are recreational and cultural opportunities in and around our waterways.

We all want a resilient and connected community who take responsibility for the water flowing through our catchment.

Help us figure out how we can make this happen

✂ 3 Questions

What's the fairest way of restricting water use during the summer?

What do we need to do to make our rivers swimmable and how long should it take to get there?

How should we manage rivers to improve natural character while safe guarding community assets, income and households?
